CARDINAL DENOUNCES BIRTH CONTROL AGAIN

Stand That Practice Brings Danger of Race Suicide.

By the Associated Press
CINCINNATI, Dec. 19.—Patrick Cardinal Hayes, archbishop of Cincinnati, issued a statement yesterday denouncing the practice of birth control as a danger to the race and the future of the nation.

The cardinal said that the practice of birth control is a "grave sin" and that it is a "danger to the race and the future of the nation." He said that the practice of birth control is a "grave sin" and that it is a "danger to the race and the future of the nation."

At Marion's THEATERS

PALACE STAGE AND SCREEN BILL OFFERS FINE ENTERTAINMENT

Marion theatregoers will have a last opportunity tonight to see a stage and screen bill packed with entertainment values. The picture, "The Perfect Gentleman," and the vaudeville close a two-day run at the Palace theater.

On the stage are nine of the best acts that have appeared here in many a week, all backed by Ted Harris and his Columbia network orchestra in Ches Davis' "Chicago Folies."

Outstanding in the bill are Frank "Peg" Jones, Blackface Ned Haverly and Henry Neiser, the "Frogman." Jones, a peck-legged dancer who for years was a stand-in for Keith vaudeville act, scored a genuine show-stop with his expert hoofing and comedy and had to beg off after two encores. Second to Jones in the hand-clapping test of popularity with yesterday's audience was Ned Haverly, burnt cork comic and soft shoe artist for merly with Al G. Fields' minstrel. Ned offers a routine on a stand covered stage to the tune of "When You and I Were Young Maggie." He has lost none of his ability with the passing years.

Henry Neiser, excellent contortionist who has always been a favorite in big time vaudeville, performs in frog costume. He was well received. Nander and Nandria are a tall, graceful couple offering two character dances the crowd appeared to like. The Ellison sisters are competent in familiar tap routines, and Joyce Barker got by nicely with her dance novelties.

Alta Muth, a slim blond miss provided variety with her warbling of popular tunes, and Bobby Bedford is a young tenor with better than average ability. A stand-out for variety is "The Swingers," an unusually good skating turn.

It was particularly gratifying to note that last night's audience did not sit on their hands, and their appreciativeness was rewarded with added efforts behind the footlights. Taken as a whole last night's stage offering was just about the best vaudeville revue the Palace has had this season.

The feature picture left nothing to be desired in the way of laughs. Starring the very funny Frank Morgan and featuring Cicely Courtneidge, fresh from London, are music hall, "The Perfect Gentleman," proved highly entertaining. Added are a Paramount Variety and a news reel—G. H. M.

Christmas Dinner Fund To Aid Needy Families

Bags holding all that goes to make a real Christmas dinner will bring smiles like the above to mothers in the homes of the city's less fortunate families, with the distribution of Christmas bags by the Salvation Army. Tiny tots like the above also will be remembered in the baskets, which will contain in addition to the Christmas dinner, an inexpensive toy for them.

A Christmas dinner fund of $150 has been set by Adjutant John Hunter, head of the Salvation Army corps, as a goal to be reached by Christmas day, to care for the city's less fortunate families on the holiday.

Funds to provide the baskets which will go into homes of the city's largest needy families, widows and aged couples, will come from the contributions to the Salvation Army Christmas kettles which have been on the streets for more than a week, and the response received to the appeal letters sent out earlier in the holiday season by Adjutant Hunter.

"We are planning to care for at least 100 families," Adjutant more than $5 ahead of the receipts on the corresponding date last year.

The baskets will be arranged according to size of the family, and will be delivered some time Tuesday. Apples, oranges, vegetables, canned fruit, vegetables, ketchup, and other necessities will be included in each basket.

Your Health

Hookworm

Sometimes the observance of a few simple health rules is sufficient to cure or to prevent certain disorders. An excellent example of this is the prevent method of dealing with hookworm.

This disease was at one time universally prevalent in the south. But it has been controlled by the energetic efforts of the health departments of the various states. These officials have cooperated with federal health authorities and with special organizations like the Rockefeller sanitary commission. Not only has hookworm been eradicated from infested places but in many instances the sanitary measures used have served as an object lesson inspiring greater cleanliness with improved health.

Of course certain localities still harbor the hookworm disease. It is especially prevalent in the tropical and sub-tropical countries of the world.

The hookworm is a round tapering worm varying from one half to three-quarters of an inch in length. One a hookworm lodge in the human intestine it may remain there for years unless driven out by special medication. A sufferer from hookworm may harbor hundreds perhaps a thousand worms.

Since the worms are parasites sucking nutrients from the victim he loses weight. The patient tires easily has no "zip" and is accused of being lazy because he always has the desire to sleep. Anemia and digestive disturbances develop and in the the sallow per on may see me bedridden.

The sufferer from hookworm has a peculiar craving for chalk and a lush swallowing. It is a terrible object, such as clay and other dirt resin chalk and hair. This inclination should always be an indication that he has worms present. It warrants an examination of the stool to determine whether these worms are present or not.

Usually the hookworm enters the body through the skin. For this reason the disturbance is to be prevalent in sections of the country where the natives walked barefooted. The first in a case taken

The Stars Say--

For Friday, Dec. 10

A DAY of commotion and conflicting circumstances is the augury read from the predominant planetary configurations. Excepting for employment which is under fortunate directions there may be a radical disturbance and upheaval. It is quite likely that there will be an unexpected uprooting of general conditions with important change now interests and surroundings. There may be benefits of a financial nature with unexpected or speculative gains.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of unsettlement and disturbance of a quite unforeseen nature. This may involve new interests and surroundings. If in connection with a change of employment it should be advantageous. The mind will be found keyed to meet doubtful situations although it may have a caustic tinge.

A child born on this day may have a shrewd and brilliant mind with leanings toward the unusual or spectacular. It will succeed in employment but may be restless changeable and erratic.

A Different Hoover On Battlefront

Former President Seen in New Light as He Levels Attack on Policies and Program of New Deal

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright 1935 by The Marion Star

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—There is a new Hoover in the public eye. He is no longer the man who is seen only in the White House, but a man who is seen in the public eye. He is no longer the man who is seen only in the White House, but a man who is seen in the public eye. He is no longer the man who is seen only in the White House, but a man who is seen in the public eye.

Mr. Hoover at St. Louis. Many of those who have a dislike for Mr. Hoover are now seeing him in a new light. He is no longer the man who is seen only in the White House, but a man who is seen in the public eye. He is no longer the man who is seen only in the White House, but a man who is seen in the public eye.

Mr. Hoover might use such a tone and still not be a candidate. He might be driving as a common explanation has it to lay down the lines of battle so clearly that all doubt of the Republican party's position would be erased. In that way Mr. Hoover would be able to lead through his party's platform and the selection of a candidate committed to his views.

There remains however another and stronger possibility—that Mr. Hoover not only is willing to be the Republican presidential candidate next year but is anxious to be the candidate. Usually there is mentioned the handicap under which he would run against President Roosevelt.

Looking back to the 'fateful month of February 1933 the public generally had little knowledge of what the new deal held in store. So far as a spending policy was concerned Mr. Hoover not only was committed to economy but it will be recalled that he did put through the economy act in the first few weeks of his term.

Mr. Hoover is on the right track when he mentions the public's view of the new deal. He is no longer the man who is seen only in the White House, but a man who is seen in the public eye. He is no longer the man who is seen only in the White House, but a man who is seen in the public eye.

There may have been a few insiders who knew Mr. Roosevelt was not only fond of the gold standard but in fact a great many persons more or less influential in the Roosevelt circle were in the same boat. It is not plausible to argue as Mr. Hoover does that the public generally knew it or that this caused the run on the banks.

Also it is doubtful whether the Detroit banks that were closed could have been regarded as being as sound then as they are today with the recovery that has been made in the last few years.

There is not much value now in a political discussion of the factors that brought on the bank holiday. Mr. Hoover may well be convinced that public confidence was low in 1933 but the administration's action in closing the banks was not the result of a lack of confidence.

But today the fact is that Mr. Hoover feels he has been badly criticized for this. He is no longer the man who is seen only in the White House, but a man who is seen in the public eye. He is no longer the man who is seen only in the White House, but a man who is seen in the public eye.

This will make the record of the Hoover administration a matter of debate. The Roosevelt Democrats will not dislike at all the latter will prefer to have public psychology transferred from the mistakes of the hour to the events of 1931 and 1932.

But Mr. Hoover has humbly enough will fight the battle for vindication and while he may not convert all of the many who deserted him in 1933, he may help to hold intact the Republican vote that was cast for him. And the Republican strategists can hardly ignore the Hoover tactics for the time being.

Mr. Hoover's own record is a record of success. He is no longer the man who is seen only in the White House, but a man who is seen in the public eye. He is no longer the man who is seen only in the White House, but a man who is seen in the public eye.

With the requirement that all banks be thoroughly inspected a lot of people instead of running over a man should be able to stop right on top of him. Philadelphia Inquirer.

UNHAUSABLE SOURCE. Watching business men and politicians Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, can not see where people have more to hope for from politicians. Mr. Frank's answer to that would be no political jobs. Toledo Blade.

IN THE SWING. It is easy to see that the fever has gripped the world. The sound accompaniment to the news is in 100 per cent in march time. Detroit News.

101 BOTTLES READY. New reality is fine in fact but in practice it is a little more than a crowd of fans at a ball game. Indianapolis Star.

CHINESE HONOR OHIO 'MOTHER'

Mrs. A. M. Williams Greeted by Many of Former Students

By International News Service
COLUMBUS, Dec. 14.—Mrs. A. M. Williams, a Chinese girl who came to America at the age of 15, and who has since become a prominent business woman, was greeted today by many of her former students at the Ohio State University. Mrs. Williams, who is now 35 years old, came to America in 1915, and has since become a prominent business woman. She is now the owner of the Williams Bros. department store in Columbus, Ohio. She is also a member of the Ohio State University Alumni Association. She is the only Chinese woman to have been elected to the office of president of the Ohio State University Alumni Association. She is also a member of the Ohio State University Board of Trustees. She is the only Chinese woman to have been elected to the office of president of the Ohio State University Alumni Association. Sometimes I would give them Chinese food and sometimes I would give them American food but always I was Mother Williams to them all who explain.

One of her boys, Dr. H. H. King, former minister of finance was one of Mother Williams' boys who came to America and was one of the first to greet her upon her return to China.

Over the years there have also celebrated the college's centennial this year.

Mrs. Williams (left) with her children, who are now studying in Chinese colleges. Most of them are at the American missionary-founded Yenching University outside Peking. A few of these came from the United States to study but the bulk are youths whose parents live in China and who have had their earlier education in this country.

SKIDDING OF AUTOS WORSE IN SUMMER

Surprising Discovery Made by British Research Board

By United Press
LONDON.—That wet roads are more dangerous in summer than they are in winter is the surprising discovery made by the royal research board and published in its first report just issued by the department of scientific and industrial research.

The explanation according to the experts would appear to be that the occasional rains of summer found the roads covered with a film of dust which forms a lubricant and causes skidding while the more frequent rains in winter keep the roads clear of dust. The theory sounds reasonable but the discovery has surprised motorists who have always been more apprehensive of skidding in winter than in summer.

But the road research board which has been studying skidding for two years is hopeful that it can presently make suggestions to manufacturers of motor cars which will eliminate skidding from whatever cause while at the same time it is in its search for the perfect road.

JUTILA DENIES HIS CONSCIENCE HURT HIM

Tells Warren Court of Striking Woman Assaulting Her and Setting Bed Afire

By The Associated Press
WARREN, O., Dec. 14.—Ray Jutilla, 41, pale from an attempted suicide last Friday said that he was not conscious of doing wrong, as he had Mrs. Marie Tobin, 40, into insanity last May.

Jutilla who admitted on the stand he was Mrs. Tobin's paramour is charged with the first degree torch slaying of the woman.

A crowded courtroom heard Jutilla relate in a low voice that he struck Mrs. Tobin down in her bedroom criminally assaulted her, beat her with a smoking stand, killed her dog and set fire to her home to erase the crime.

Did you ever plan to kill her? asked Defense Counsel George Buckwalter.

Why did you kill her? I don't know.

Were you conscious of any wrongdoing at that time? Buckwalter asked. I was only conscious that I wanted to hit her.

The defendant said he went downstairs, washed his hands and then realized what he had done.

Were you still drunk? Buckwalter asked referring to Jutilla's testimony he had drunk a pint of bootleg whiskey before going to the Tobin home. Yes, I felt dizzy, the witness said.

Are you sure Marie was dead? Yes, I shook her and tried to wake her up.

Jutilla said fear of detection led him to kill Tobin's dog.

I decided to erase everything by burning down the house, he said.

I went in the front room downstairs got some papers and spread them over the body on the bed and under the bed I sat in the steps. It seems like a long time until dark.

When I got dark I went up and lit the papers.

He said he wiped everything he remembered touching with his handkerchief to erase fingerprints.

INCREASE IN RELIEF LIST FEARED BY U. S.

Situation Complicates Work of President and Advisors on Budget

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—A fear that the number of people on relief may begin to increase again after declining steadily for months was limited in official quarters today.

This it was said added to the complexity of the budget problem which President Roosevelt is discussing with relief administrators and other department heads.

Working on the budget for the next year the administration indicates it is seeking to retard the rate of rise of the public debt which reached an all time high of $30,550,791,967 yesterday.

Predictions that states and communities may demand a continuation of the federal dole were heard last night after Harry L. Hopkins works progress administrator reported on relief conditions in large cities.

The number of families and single persons drawing relief in such cities declined 9.4 per cent in November as compared with October, he said. But he added that in many cities the depletion of individual resources aggravated by the growing winter need adverse affected the relief situation.

It was indicated that many persons who had long been jobless without going on relief have recently been seeking public aid because their resources are exhausted.

NEVER MIND THE LADY
by David Garth

David Garth
accident Terry
at that time
a train there usually in May and he had
and he had
in the tropics been able to a little. How a comfortable
run out on her in the heat of a home in Air

all my luggage is in a box up there.
"What do you
Willet didn't see what a difference that made but he did believe we can have a lot of fun in New York too I know. I know like the palm of my hand."
"I'm not looking for fun exactly."
You never have I think said the girl. "High time you were going out to yourself."
They went out on the sidewalk and called taxis. In the doorway Puff paused.
If you don't find Allice she said "I live at the Mayflower big boy she smiled at him. Call come in person or send out thought waves. We can have a lot of fun."
She was gone Terry looked after her a moment. Pretty girl with dark hair seeming to endow her eyes with that violet color—and so what? Good luck to the student from Port Myers whose sister had been junked by congress.
Then he climbed into his taxi and gave the address Puff had furnished him.
The West home was a stone mansion on Massachusetts avenue with a courtyard guarded by a wall and two large black drawbridge like doors one labeled in and the other out.
Terry got out before the lighted portico and regarded the place curiously. A moment he never would have thought that girl had so much money. Funny world.
Some people sweat at their lives and stayed broke and others bought a grove of sun breezes and a deck chair every time the sun got too hot.

The butler who answered the door looked a little surprised. It was that interlude before the dinner hour and this young man not only had no evening clothes but there had been no word to expect him. He would see if Miss West was at home.
Willet came into a broad hall lit by great crystal chandeliers shining down on a parquet floor.
He sat down in a chair and waited his hat around himself in his hand.
Then the butler returned and ushered him into a small reception room—a strange room for that cold mansion of stone and crystal.
There was a warm lounge almost in the kind of place that reminded one of a corner of a smoking room on a luxurious ocean liner.
The small sailing ship model on the mantel piece the dark rug and an imperceptible feeling of vibration that emanated from the solid furnishings of the furniture the slow ticking brass round clock and the regularly spaced diamond lights supported by little rods of grilled iron from oaken walls.
Miss West will receive you here she said the butler.
Thank you very much said
Willet politely.
He lit a cigaret looked around him curiously and decided this being received business was quite evidently an ornate function.
It seemed a long time before Allice finally appeared. It was quite a time Willet had started his third cigaret. But suddenly she was there.
She made him think of a slim shaft of silver as she stood on the threshold an evening gown of something shimmering changing color about her. For a moment neither spoke. They looked at each other almost as if searching for something.
Silver is a cold color and so was an intangible current in the air—like a draught coming from some unknown place. Terry sensed that immediately. He had a crazy idea that he was being inspected like a prize bull. The girl made no move.
"Hello," he said and grinned.
"Surprised to see me?"
The girl nodded her head gracefully.
"I didn't believe it at first," she said calmly. "Of all people—the engineer. What are you doing in a civilized part of the world? Why I'd rather imagined you'd be in darkest Africa by now."
That's quite a distance from South America.
Pretty far she agreed to run.
She came into the room and extended a hand. A French diplomat would undoubtedly have kissed it, there was something of that in her nature. Willet held it, unresponsive in his dark eyes, as pale of saying so much seemed only polite expectation.

"I'm not looking for fun exactly," he said withdrawing her hand. "I had thought of you in darkest Africa in a path helmet digging whisky from a demijohn over you. Boulder and a martini —a defining me, jungle to put up a Willet sat down. He felt vaguely unappeared—there was something about him. He was inviting. He could have understood but not this usual lack of sympathy.

"I ran across you—trill today," he said finally. "My father often on the Washington train."
He often use, the Old Dominion big she agreed.
There was another silence. Willet thought that was the father often used the Old Dominion. Good thing that was so set.
"I thought I'd follow you up," he resumed.
"Did you?" I'm very grateful but —why?
"Why? Perfectly natural question of course. In the barrier of coolness was beginning to annoy him.
She seemed a part of the cold reserved beauty of her home.
"I wanted to see you again. After all he pointed out with a brief appearing smile you said in my life."
He had his life saved and saved himself. He was a true in the course of his hectic racing experience. It hadn't been anything particular noteworthy until this girl had covered him.
She flashed slightly but said Terry is not pleased by what

Married Comrades
BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge informed that Noel's condition is splendid THERE WAS such a waiting in Mary's face and voice as she suggested going over to the other cabin and finding out how Noel was that I could not feel he was with her that her really silly person on a deserted island.
I had been but a half hour since Dr. Rieker had banished me from the sickroom because Noel needed only professional care and Mary herself had seen Noel fall in to a sound slumber which the physician was determined should be undisturbed. And now she wished to go back with a surprise query?
But I knew—for I had watched outside Dickey's door through little more dangerous than his of Noel—how he had been heartcraved the latest possible news from his husband's bedside before he himself should seek slumber.
I could not permit her to go over to the other camp herself however. Katherine is everything that is sympathetic to her who is a trained nurse who has no interference with the duties of a physician upon whose case she is working.
Dr. Rieker had banished Mary to go the usual man's banishment.
But there was no banishment myself. I was to be careful to make no sound which would disturb the sleeping patient.
I smiled at her indulgently and put her back.
Madge Goes Over
I can't let you go over. I tell because Dr. Rieker might not like it after he said you could not be in the sickroom tonight. But I will creep across find out just how things are and return and tell you that is I tell! If you will promise me to go to bed directly I come back.
If Noel is asleep she said I promise. But if he isn't I can't go to sleep.
He'll be asleep. I said and sent up a fervent petition as I made my way to the other camp that no words would prove true.
As I neared the door of the other cabin Mr. Gibbs came from the windward door which ended at the camp door.
Everything all right? he queried in an undertone.
That's just what I came to find out. I returned. My niece has hand was asleep and his condition good when I left here a half hour ago. I would not have come back only my niece wants so much to be assured that he is all right before she goes to sleep.
That is all right women. Mr.
Gibbs said in the tone of an oracle but muted so that no sound of it reached the inside of the cabin.
So are men? I whispered back

RIGHT TO CONDEMN
PROPERTY IS UPHELD

Supreme Court Rules in Favor of Muskingum Project and Against Scout Camp
By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 18. The Muskingum watershed conservation district has a right to the preserved land to condemn property for the construction of a railroad within its jurisdiction.
Lower courts of Muskingum county awarded $175,000 and a half acre of a 150 acre camp to the district in a condemnation proceeding and permitted the district to relocate Pennsylvania railroad tracks.
The George D. Hays Trust of London, trustee for the United Boy Scouts association, appealed from such a purpose and appealed from the decision. The supreme court upheld the lower court.
Muskingum, the court ruled has the constitutional right to regulate the closing hours of barbers shops. It upheld an appellate court decision reversing a Zanesville municipal court decision.
In an action of interest to barbers, the court decided to pass on the constitutionality of the barbers code. Richard Freeman of Mansfield appealed from a municipal court conviction and $25 fine on a charge of violating sanitary regulations prescribed by the state board of barber examiners. The appellate court held the code valid.
